NOW, THEREFORE, for and in consideration of the promises and the mutual covenants hereinafter contained, the Parties hereto covenant and agree as follows:

ARTICLE I

AGREEMENT TERMS

1.1 Initial Term. This Agreement shall commence upon execution, and shall terminate three years from the date hereof unless terminated earlier under the provision of Section 1.3 below.

1.2 Renewal Term. This Agreement shall be automatically renewed from year to year for additional one (1) year terms, commencing on the date of expiration of the Initial Term and each successive Renewal Term, unless sooner terminated by either party in accordance with the terms of Section 1.3 below.

1.3 Termination. This Agreement may be terminated without cause, by vote of either the members of the BRA or the members of EDIC, provided that thirty (30) days prior written notice of the call of a meeting to vote on said termination is given to the other party and provided that no such termination shall be effective until 60 days following such vote. Said thirty (30) day notice may be waived by the mutual written consent of the Parties hereto.

ARTICLE II

SCOPE OF SERVICES

2.1 The EDIC hereby agrees that the BRA shall take all actions necessary to manage any and all Projects undertaken or to be undertaken by the EDIC during the term of this Agreement, and the EDIC hereby expressly intends that all management responsibilities hitherto undertaken by the EDIC for its Projects shall be the responsibility of the BRA, subject to the overall supervision and control of the members of EDIC as provided in Article V below.

2.2 Staff. The BRA shall provide staff for the management, administration, operation and implementation of the programs and functions of all Projects of the EDIC, including, without limitation, all Projects specifically set forth on Exhibit A hereto. The BRA shall perform all administrative and operational duties for which the EDIC is responsible under Chapter 1097, including the EDIC's normal and usual administrative and operational responsibilities with respect to all of its assets and liabilities, income and expenses, real property owned or leased by the EDIC and the EDIC's non-financial responsibilities with respect to outstanding bond issues; provided however, the BRA shall not have any authority to issue any bonds under Chapter 1097, and the BRA shall have no authority, without the written consent of the EDIC, to sell or encumber any assets of the EDIC or to borrow funds in the name of EDIC, or make any changes or alterations to the bonds, and provided further that all said actions of the BRA shall be subject to the control and supervision of the members of EDIC as provided in Article V herein.

It is expressly understood and agreed that, upon execution of this Agreement, all EDIC personnel, including without exception consultants, contractors, employees and the EDIC executive director ("EDIC Personnel"), shall hereafter report to and be responsible to the Director of the BRA who shall be solely responsible for all management functions of all EDIC Projects during the term of this Agreement; provided, however, that the BRA shall be subject to the control and supervision of the members of EDIC as provided in Article V herein.

2.3 Administrative Services. The BRA, by and through the use of either BRA employees or EDIC Personnel as it determines in its sole discretion, shall provide all managerial, administrative, secretarial, word processing, and bookkeeping services to the EDIC required for the management of all EDIC Projects existing or created during the term of this Agreement.

2.4 Professional Services. The BRA, by and through the use of either BRA employees or EDIC Personnel as it determines in its sole discretion, shall furnish all financial, management, accounting, legal and other professional services necessary for the management of any and all EDIC Projects.

2.5 Reports. The EDIC, through its Personnel, has provided the BRA with a list of all reports the EDIC is required by law or otherwise to prepare, attached hereto as Exhibit B. It is agreed that for the duration of this Agreement it shall be the responsibility of the BRA to prepare and furnish such reports.

The BRA shall report directly to the members of the corporation of the EDIC from time to time, shall prepare all agendas and votes necessary or convenient for the EDIC meetings, and shall, through BRA or EDIC employees as the case may be, use its best efforts to manage all EDIC Projects pursuant to this Agreement.

2.6 Community Development Funds. If and to the extent the EDIC is, or in connection with existing or prospective Projects during the term of this Agreement shall be, an applicant, recipient or granteee for funding administered by the United States of America, by and through any department or agency thereof, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, by and through any department, agency, authority or instrumentality thereof, the City of Boston, by and through any department, board or officer thereof, or any private entity, the BRA shall in all respects act as the sole and exclusive agent of the EDIC for said Projects.

2.7 EDIC Facilities. The BRA shall provide a suitable meeting room for EDIC meetings. The EDIC shall make available to the BRA all its property, office space, furnishings, file cabinets and equipment for the purpose of fulfilling the purposes of this Agreement. The BRA reserves the right to move EDIC Personnel to office space under its control and EDIC agrees to terminate any existing space leases as determined by the BRA to the extent permitted by such leases.

2.8 EDIC Personnel. In no event shall current or future EDIC Personnel be considered or deemed in any respect to be BRA employees, permanent or otherwise; provided, however, the BRA may hire in its sole discretion any of the current EDIC Personnel on terms at a minimum equivalent to their then compensation and benefits. All EDIC Personnel from and after the date hereof shall report to and be directed by the Director of the BRA. It is expressly understood that in executing the administrative and operational duties of EDIC for the purpose of managing its Projects hereunder, the Director of the BRA, subject to Article V hereof, shall supervise EDIC Personnel. The BRA shall have no authority to terminate EDIC Personnel under any circumstances, provided, however, after the end of one year from the date hereof the BRA may recommend to EDIC that EDIC terminate or layoff EDIC Personnel. The BRA may, at any time, recommend to EDIC that it terminate any EDIC Personnel for cause. From and after the date hereof, EDIC shall not hire any additional EDIC Personnel without the prior recommendation of the Director of the BRA.

2.9 Signature Authority; Depositories; Investment Decisions. Subject to Article V, the EDIC hereby appoints the Director of the BRA and his designees (who may be only officers or employees of the BRA or the EDIC) to have signature authority, for and on behalf of EDIC, for all bank accounts, certificates of deposit and any and all other financial instruments and payrolls (collectively, "Financial Instruments") of EDIC, provided that two signatures (one of which shall be the Director of the BRA and the other of which shall be a member of EDIC) shall be required on any Financial Instruments having a value of $20,000 or more. Subject to Article V, the EDIC hereby appoints the Director of the BRA and his designees (who may only be officers or employees of the BRA or the EDIC) to have signature authority, for and on behalf of EDIC, for all contracts, provided that a vote of the members of EDIC shall be required for all contracts, having a value of $20,000 or more. EDIC agrees to revoke all signature authority hitherto existing or delegated to the EDIC Executive Director and employees and agents of EDIC. Subject to Article V, from and after the date hereof, the Director of the BRA shall have the right to determine and change the depositories for any and all EDIC bank accounts and shall have the right to determine or direct the interim investment of the funds in such accounts, except for such accounts or investments that are otherwise mandated or required by existing EDIC contracts, and except that said funds may be used only for the statutory purposes set forth in said Chapter 1097. Notwithstanding the foregoing, all bank accounts must be fully insured and all monies must be invested or reinvested in only either certificates of deposit or FDIC insured money market accounts, unless otherwise consented to by EDIC.

2.10 Separation of Assets. BRA and EDIC agree that nothing in this Agreement shall be deemed to authorize the transfer of any EDIC property, money and bank accounts to the BRA or to mingle any thereof with property, money or bank accounts of the BRA, and that the BRA agrees to keep separate all BRA property, money and bank accounts from those of EDIC. Further, no act authorized by the members of the EDIC pursuant to chapter 1097 of the acts of 1971 shall be construed to be an act of the BRA, and nothing in this Agreement shall be deemed to authorized any action by EDIC giving rise to any debt or obligation on the part of the BRA or the members of the BRA.

ARTICLE III

COMPENSATION

3.1 Consideration. The consideration supporting this Agreement shall be the mutual obligations contained herein and shall not include monetary consideration, except as otherwise provided herein.

3.2 Fees. In consideration of the services provided in accordance with Article II hereof, the EDIC, subject to approval of its members, shall pay monthly to BRA a reasonable management fee based on the time spent by BRA employees to manage EDIC projects and the out-of-pocket costs incurred by the BRA in accordance with established EDIC policies. Said fee shall be no less than the amount required to cover the costs reasonably incurred by BRA during the term of this Agreement for the provision of services to the EDIC in accordance with Article II hereof, the cost of out-of-pocket expenses of BRA. Within forty five (45) days after the execution of this Agreement, BRA shall prepare and submit to EDIC for approval a plan for the management of EDIC Projects under this Agreement, which shall include a budget for the monthly fees to be charged to EDIC. EDIC shall consider the plan within two (2) weeks after submission. Once approved, said plan shall become the basis for the payment of all management fees as described below ("Approved Management Plan"). EDIC shall advance to BRA, upon the execution of this Agreement, the sum of $2,000, which shall be deemed the management fee for the first two (2) months under this Agreement. Thereafter, the management fee due and owing shall be paid monthly in arrears based on time and costs incurred during the previous calendar month and shall not exceed the budget in the Approved Management Plan. BRA shall submit monthly a statement of its fees and costs. Payment shall be due on the tenth day of each month or at such other times and dates as the Parties may in writing agree. Within thirty (30) days after the end of EDIC's fiscal year, BRA shall submit a statement of accounting including the fees and costs incurred during such year and the amount of the fees and costs paid by EDIC on a monthly basis for that year. If any adjustments are due to either party, payment of said amounts due shall be made forthwith after the completion of said accounting.

ARTICLE IV

INDEMNIFICATION

4.1 Indemnification of BRA. EDIC agrees to indemnify and save the BRA and its members, officers and employees harmless from all loss, damage, liability and expense (including reasonable attorneys fees), relating to any act of the BRA, its members, officers or employees taken on behalf of EDIC in accordance with this Management Agreement. Nothing contained herein shall require EDIC to indemnify the BRA, its members, officers or employees for any claim or liability, loss, damage or expense resulting from the gross negligence or wrongful, willful or intentional acts of the BRA, its members, officers or employees. Nothing in this Agreement shall be construed to impose any personal liability upon any individual serving as a member of the EDIC or as a member of the BRA. The EDIC agrees to maintain and continue to carry in force its current public officials liability insurance for the term of this Agreement and for the purposes and limitations of this Agreement to include the BRA, its members, officers and employees as additional insureds.

4.2 Indemnification of EDIC. BRA agrees to indemnify and save the EDIC, and its members, officers and employees harmless from all loss, damage, liability and expense (including reasonable attorneys' fees), relating to any acts of gross negligence or wrongful, willful or intentional acts of the BRA, its members, officers or employees. The BRA agrees to maintain and continue to carry in force its current public officials liability insurance for the term of this Agreement and for the purposes and limitations of this Agreement to include the EDIC its members, officers and employees as additional insureds.

ARTICLE V

AGENCY SERVICES

EDIC'S INDUSTRIAL PARKS

EDIC's three industrial parks contain over 3.5 million square feet of building space in the Boston Marine Industrial Park (BMIP) (South Boston), Crosstown Industrial Park (CTIP) (Roxbury), and Alsen Mapes Industrial Park (AMIP) (Dorchester). 186 businesses operate a haven at the Marine Industrial Park and six others at AMIP & CTIP, employing approximately 4,000. The BMIP functions on a 24 hour 7 days a week basis with Operations providing personnel and or Security. 24 hour Hot Lines and elevator emergency call lines, direct to site security, link the management to the tenants during non-traditional working hours. Parking at the BMIP can accommodate 2777 vehicles. 1799 are managed by EDIC either on a paid monthly permit, lease provision or in the 1134 car paid Public Garage. The remaining 978 are tenant spaces on leased property.

EDIC directly manages and operates 1.8 million square feet with the remaining 1.7 million square feet leased to individual tenants who provide their own services. Operations provides those tenants with lease stipulated services, e.g. snow clearance, security, water & sewer etc. Park tenants demand quality services at competitive prices and the level of tenant satisfaction is demonstrated by a minimum of complaints and a lease occupancy rate of 89%. The 32 person park staff consists of 24 maintenance personnel and 8 employees providing property management, facility engineering and administrative support. Augmentation of the day-to-day maintenance is provided by private sector contractors based on engineered specifications prepared by EDIC and publicly bid.

EDIC supervises, monitors, coordinate these contractors as well as preparing draft invoicing to tenants where applicable. Currently 9 contracts are in effect with a contract total value of $ 813,014. Other repair contracts planned or on an as-needed basis are estimated to add $462,400 to the FY94 budget. Security and the Public garage toll collector labor is contracted to the Boston Municipal Police (BMP). The contract varies depending on the special events activity but is estimated not to exceed $270,000 for 1993. Additional revenue of $48,000/yr is generated to the City of Boston for parking citations issued by the BMP. Special events at the BMIP create additional revenues and each event is managed & coordinated with other public agencies by EDIC. Notable of these was Sail Boston '92 with its millions of visitors.

The Marine Park's two graving dry docks remain vital links in the Port of Boston's stability and growth. Drydock 4, has been leased to private operators since 1978. Drydock 3, managed by EDIC benefitted from a UDAG Grant in 1978 and was the onset by EDIC to revitalize the ship repair industry. With EDIC providing the pumping & maintenance services the Dock was offered to the industry on a per-diem basis based on gross vessel tonnage. Through 1985, 30 major vessels were overhauled. The facility remained idle until mid-1992 when the General Ship Corporation docked 2 major vessels, one being the QE2. Since 1986 EDIC has not offered the per diem rate and associated services due to lack of funding for upkeep. The facility is now offered on a triple net basis with rates ranging from $30,000 to $40,000 per month. Repairs to the dock currently are limited to as-needed emergencies. The vintage 1915 facility requires substantial capital investment estimated at $2.5 million. This investment will insure US Navy certification and modernization to offer a competitive facility to the industry. This $2.5 million investment does not preclude private operators use of the dock for Navy vessels. Private firms have been able to obtain temporary certification without problem.

BUSINESS SERVICES

Boston businesses need a place where they can turn to as a "one-stop shopping" center for their needs. Using a wide array of business services, EDIC provides a central location for business technical assistance for Boston businesses.

- EDIC's leasing staff provides direct site-finding services to Boston businesses and businesses seeking to locate in Boston. Between 1990 and 1993, EDIC leased nearly 220,000 square feet to fifteen new tenants who expanded their businesses into the Marine Industrial Park. Many of these tenants would have left Boston if they did not move or expand into the MIP. EDIC publishes an annual Site-Finder, listing all available industrial leasing and development sites in Boston, as well as a Retail Site Finder, listing all available neighborhood retail development sites.

- EDIC staff work closely with trade associations in various industries, including food processing, electronics, printing, and the garment industry. One joint venture between EDIC and the International Ladies Garment Workers Union led to the creation of the Garment Industry Assistance Program. The program brings together the unions, workers, manufacturers and designers to help build the garment industry in Boston and increase its competitiveness. The program led to the opening of the first new union garment shop in Boston in three decades, Fashion A, which employs 30 workers.

- EDIC publishes an annually updated Business Assistance Resource Guide which outlines available business assistance services and financing sources in the Metro-Boston area.

- EDIC sponsors a "Boston Works for Business" seminar series, including one dozen seminars on topics ranging from writing business plans and financial controls to creating Employee Stock Ownership programs and export techniques. The program also includes a continuing series of neighborhood based credit seminars to help Boston businesses prepare business plans, loan applications, and identify business problems and resources.

- EDIC regularly provides general assistance for Boston businesses which need help in dealing with public bureaucracies, developing new markets, etc. For example, EDIC played a critical role in securing a federal Defense contract for the Sterling Wear Corporation of East Boston, which is creating 200 jobs for union garment workers to stitch high-quality military uniforms. EDIC staff also worked closely with the dozens of companies facing relocation from the Central Artery/Third Harbor Tunnel project to find suitable re-location facilities.

MARKETING AND ATTRACTING NEW BUSINESSES

In 1990, EDIC published "Growth In the Nineties: Prospects for Strategic Economic Development in Boston". This report, which proposed a targeted effort to recruit and help grow several emerging and rapidly growing industries, has formed the basis of EDIC's business marketing and recruitment efforts. Business marketing and recruitment efforts to date have included:

- A Boston Works for Business 1-800 number to offer businesses outside the city direct access to information about locating in Boston.
- Publication of 12 page advertising supplement in Business Week
- Publication of 10 page supplement in Barron's
- Publication of advertisement in Business Week
- Insertion of advertisement in Site Selection magazine.
- Direct mailings to more than 1,000 high growth companies in the environmental, biotechnology, and advanced materials industries
- Attendance at regional trade shows and industry meetings in the environmental, food processing, biomedical, and advanced materials industries.

BOSTON LOCAL DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

The Boston Local Development Corporation (BLDC) was formed in 1978 to further the economic development of the City of Boston. The principal objective of the corporation is to benefit the community by fostering increased employment opportunities and expansion of business and industry for the citizens of the City of Boston. The corporation promotes and assists the growth and development of business concerns, including small-business concerns in the City.

To achieve its economic development objectives BLDC has developed the following financial services and lending programs:

TARGETED REVOLVING LOAN PROGRAM

The Targeted Revolving Loan Program makes loans to achieve economic benefit. The revolving loan program is designed to fill gaps in existing local financial markets; provide or attract capital otherwise not available to businesses; meet long-term fixed asset financing needs of the City of Boston's small businesses and leverage private investment.

WORKING CAPITAL LOAN PROGRAM

This program provides long term working capital for the City of Boston's small businesses. It is designed to assist those businesses who are not able to obtain financing through conventional sources.

SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION PROGRAM

As a Certified Development Company (CDC), BLDC has access to the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) 504 Loan Program. The 504 Loan Program is the U.S. Small Business Administration's fixed asset financing program for expanding small businesses. It is designed to create jobs through assisting small businesses in their physical plant expansion.

BOSTON SMALL BUSINESS FUND (BSBF)

The BSBF is a neighborhood-based Micro Loan Program administered by the BLDC and nine participating Community Development Corporations. The BSBF provides loans of between $1,000 and $15,000 to eligible Boston businesses for working capital, equipment and inventory.

The Boston Local Development Corporation ("BLDC") is a source of funds to be invested in economic development and job creation projects.

BLDC's objective is to provide financial assistance to Boston's small businesses by making available loans and loan guarantees at or below market interest rates.

It is administered by a 9-member board composed of representatives from local government, private lending institutions, community organizations and the business community.
BLDC seeks projects which:

1. serve a public purpose and are unable to obtain all the necessary funding from other sources;

2. develop small business;

3. assist mature industries;

4. are eligible for CDBG/EDA Title IX financing.

BLDC will consider committing funds for acquisition, construction, working capital and equipment purchases.

Expansion financing and credit oriented term loans are included in the lending activities.

Typically BLDC will be able to finance up to 30% of the total financing request up to maximum loan size of $150,000.00.

BLDC can structure its loans to fit the specific needs of its portfolio companies.
BLDC will make loans to mature companies on a fixed rate and long term basis and will participate with other lenders and creditors in the revitalization of existing businesses.

The lending rate on BLDC loans is typically at or below market rates dependent on risk. As a general rule, interest rates will no less than or more than 2 points above or below the prime rate offered by the banks.

The borrower pays all such expenses, (i.e. origination fee, legal fees, appraisals, servicing fees, etc).

Projects must:

1. be located in the City of Boston;

2. offer clear public benefits primarily accruing to the residents of the City of Boston;

3. conform to environmental, building, and zoning regulations;

4. evidence long-term viability;

5. meet one or more goals of the BLDC;

6. demonstrate the ability to repay the loan under the terms of the financing.

complete financial package. Application and a listing of those items needed for a complete financial package may be obtained from the Economic Development and Industrial Corporation.

THE BOSTON INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT FINANCING AUTHORITY

The Boston Industrial Development Financing Authority (BIDFA) was created in 1972 under Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 40D. BIDFA was established as a board of the City and an affiliate of the Economic Development and Industrial Corporation of Boston to promote economic growth and increased employment in the City of Boston. The legislation enables BIDFA to issue bonds which finance the capital needs of Boston's businesses and institutions. The credit of the borrower - and not that of the City of Boston, BIDFA, or the Commonwealth of Massachusetts - is pledged to repay the bonds.

BIDFA requires each borrower to execute a Memorandum of Understanding regarding Non-discrimination and Employment of Local Labor, through which the borrower agrees to make reasonable efforts to provide certain percentages of both new jobs and construction jobs at the project to Boston residents, with an emphasis on minorities and women.

TAX-EXEMPT BONDS FOR NON-PROFIT INSTITUTIONS

Tax-Exempt bonds are available through BIDFA to qualified educational, healthcare and cultural institutions which have 501(c)(3) status. Bond proceeds may be applied to the construction, renovation and equipping of several types of projects, such as research and development facilities, medical diagnostic imagining facilities, museums, continuing care facilities, nursing or convalescent homes, academic facilities and other institutional uses. These projects are not subject to the state volume cap on tax-exempt financing.

TAX-EXEMPT INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BONDS (IDB's)

BIDFA has historically issued tax-exempt IDB's for businesses planning to acquire land and construct new facilities, expand/renovate an existing facility or purchase new equipment. These bonds are subject to the statewide volume cap. Projects eligible for tax-exempt financing are manufacturing facilities which create tangible products, cogeneration or small power facilities for the local furnishing of energy or gas, and solid waste/resource recovery facilities. These projects often have a strong job creation/retention component. Eligibility for tax-exempt proceeds for industrial use has been severely curtailed through federal tax reform; commercial uses have been eliminated.

TAXABLE BONDS

BIDFA is able to issue bonds for industrial and commercial enterprises and for institutional projects not used by 501 (c)(3) organizations; the interest on these bonds is not exempt from federal taxes. Taxable bonds may be sold in the public credit markets, or privately placed. There is no size limit and the volume cap restriction does not apply.

RELATIONSHIP WITH EDIC

The Boston Industrial Development Financing Authority is an affiliate of and is staffed by Boston's Economic Development and Industrial Corporation (EDIC). EDIC was established in 1971 by an act of the state legislature. As a quasi-public agency, EDIC holds the powers and responsibilities of both public agencies and private corporations organized under Massachusetts laws. To finance its projects EDIC has made equity investments, issued industrial revenue bonds, drawn money from City general obligation bonds, formed a real estate syndicate and borrowed from state and federal loan programs. EDIC regularly works with bankers, brokers and local, state and federal officials to obtain funding. Together with its affiliates, EDIC acts as a areal estate broker, banker and job trainer for Boston's businesses and institutions

Jobs and Community Services:

The Jobs and Community Services Department provides three major sets of services to Boston residents: employment and training, community and human services, and monitoring and enforcement of the Boston Residents Jobs Policy. It serves as the administrator and manager of federal and state grants for employment and training and human services as well as the Boston Neighborhood Jobs Trust.

EDIC provides most of its education, training, job placement and human services through a network of community based service providers. Services are also provided directly by EDIC through its Worker Assistance Center which serves dislocated workers and through the Boston Technical Center, a training organization located at the Boston Marine Industrial Park.

The major categories of service within the Jobs and Community Services Department are:

Employment and Education activities which include job training, welfare-to-work transition, services to workers displaced by plant closing and lay-offs, school-to-work transition, alternative education for out of school youth, and the summer federal youth employment program. In addition, the Adult Literacy Initiative and other education activities focus on assisting adult residents to become fully literate in English as a Second Language, in basic literacy and math skills, and to earn their GED or high school diploma.

Service is restricted by the various applicable regulations to individuals who meet low income eligibility criteria and explicit barriers to employment.

Human services which are provided to Boston residents through programs under the Community Development Block Grant. This funding supports childcare activities, counseling services, youth services, elderly services, and special initiatives for literacy and job training.

An important element of the EDIC strategy in delivering services to residents in the most effective and productive manner is the cooperation and collaboration with neighborhood and community based agencies. In the current fiscal year, EDIC funds 193 programs in the city through which more than 30,000 residents receive services. The attached chart lists services by category and neighborhood and the directory lists each program which is funded by EDIC.

Performance Outcomes

There are performance outcomes attached to each employment and training grant that is administered by EDIC. While each grant has a different way of measuring outcomes, there are basically three standards for performance. For training programs performance measurement is based on job placement, for youth programs performance measurement is based on job placement or employability competencies and for adult education programs performance measurement is based on job placement, educational advancement or a GED.

Across grants, the outcome numbers for FY'93 were as follows:

- For skills training programs, 62% were placed into full-time permanent jobs. The standard for skills training varies by grant, but given the current level of unemployment, 60% is the average standard. The other 38% were placed into part-time jobs, continue to receive services, are still searching for a job or have decided not to pursue employment.

- For youth employment programs, 76% obtained a positive performance outcome. The standard is 73% for the largest of the funding sources, the Job Training Partnership Act.

- For adult education programs, 79% obtained a positive outcome. The standard for the largest grant, the Adult Literacy Initiative is 75%.

Discretionary Grants and Demonstration Projects

Although a majority of JCS funding is derived from formula allocation of grant funds, the agency also competes aggressively for discretionary grant funding. Services supported through competitive grants include:

- In 1992, JCS was awarded a Youth Opportunities Unlimited grant of $1.5 million over three years, in partnership with a coalition of Egleston Square community organizations, to open up an alternative community high school for at risk youth.

- In 1992, JCS was selected by the Department of Labor to administer a demonstration grant with the Office of Treatment Improvement to provide training services to residents recovering from substance abuse.

- In 1992, JCS received nearly $5 million for summer jobs for low-income youth, and was one of the few cities in the nation which spent the entire allocation despite a short planning horizon.

- In 1990, the Neighborhood Jobs Trust leveraged $1 million in private dollars with $436,000 from the Trust.

- In 1990, JCS was awarded a five-year grant from the Commission on Substance Abuse Prevention to administer a program in collaboration with four latino agencies to educate hispanic teen girls about substance abuse and provide case management services to the girls and their families.

Over the next few months, JCS anticipates additional competition for Youth Fair Chance (formerly Youth Opportunities Unlimited) dollars, School to Work transition dollars, and Dislocated worker dollars.

The Boston Technical Center

The Boston Technical Center is an affiliate of EDIC which operates training programs in the areas of medical secretarial, cable installation, machine tool and biomedical research and manufacturing. The BTC serves approximately 80 students each year. Each of its programs have an active employer advisory committee which assist in curriculum development, assessment, and job placement.

Neighborhood Jobs Trust

NJT has focused on institutional entry level or upgrading job training opportunities for the past three years. The majority of contributions to the trust have been made by area teaching hospitals and the health care industry has offered the best employment opportunities for Boston residents during this period. Over the three year period, NJT has operated training programs in collaboration with the following health care institutions: Department of Health and Hospitals, Faulkner Hospital, Beth Israel Hospital, Brigham and Women's Hospital, Children's Hospital, American Red Cross and Harvard Community Health Plan and New England Deaconess Hospital.

Boston Residents Jobs Program
Enforcing the BRJP

The first step in the enforcement procedure is when C&E staff attend pre-bid conferences. At that time, the Ordinance is explained to potential project bidders. The Ordinance requirements are reviewed again in more detail at preconstruction meetings, which are held with every contractor prior to the start of construction.

Contractors are required to submit weekly reports detailing compliance data. On-site inspections verify and supplement weekly reports. When a monitor inspects a project, it serves as a visible reminder of the seriousness of the City's commitment to the BRJP policy.

Corrective action meetings are initiated when a project has low compliance with the BRJP. These meetings are the key tool in the enforcement process since they provide an opportunity for the C&E staff to outline their concerns and for the contractor to present his/her case.

Failure to adhere to agreements reached in corrective action meetings, or continued poor performance, triggers a second corrective action meeting. Sustained difficulties can lead to a meeting with the Boston Employment Commission Executive Director or to an investigation by a Boston Employment Commission subcommittee.

Construction monitors conducted:

300 site inspections
146 preconstruction conferences
97 corrective action meetings
47 internal review meetings

We held 59 Quarterly Reviews which involved all line departments on every major project.

Developmental Impact Projects (DIPS) achieved 41% resident, 23% minority and 5% female participation. This is up from 33% resident, 18% minority and 4% female in 1990. This is the highest level of compliance we have achieved in this class of construction.

Public projects achieved 46% resident, 33% minority and 4% female participation. Only through consistent, aggressive monitoring has resident, minority and female participation been able to meet the goals outlined in the 1986 Ordinance. The construction industry is slowly recovering from one of its worst downturns. In 1988 over 6.2 million construction hours were tracked by EDIC, as compared to 1993 when less than 2 million were available. Without the Boston Residents Jobs Policy being in place, resident, minority and female participation in the construction industry would have been grievously low. As it is, monitored construction yielded 2,318 resident jobs, 1,620 minority jobs and 222 female jobs in Fiscal Year 1993.

Boston's Performance Compared to Other Cities

The Boston Residents Jobs Policy is without question the most ambitious and effective policy of its kind in the country. A recent analysis of comparable policies in major cities found that three cities; Chicago, Camden, New Jersey and Philadelphia, had similar policies currently in effect. Boston is the only city which extends its resident/minority/women preference policy to privately funded projects. Boston also is the only city which has a quasi-judicial enforcement entity, the Boston Employment Commission.

Unlike its counterpart ordinances in other cities, the BRJP includes project monitoring for small projects which are included voluntarily. Also unique to the Boston ordinance is the fact that all public projects are included regardless of size. Other cities have eligibility cutoffs for such projects: $50,000 camden; $100,000 Chicago; $1 million Philadelphia.

1993 was a busy year for the Compliance and Enforcement Division of EDIC. Given the urgency of securing jobs during the economic downturn, we increased attention on timely monitoring, stronger enforcement, and closer coordination with awarding authorities and building trade representatives.

- Specially scheduled classes in advanced WordPerfect and Lotus 123, and in Harvard Graphics, dBase IV, and other software applications.
- Business hour "help desk" for all EDIC staff, to answer questions and troubleshoot problems.

II. Operation of JTPA Employment/Training Client Tracking System

Development of a decentralized, automated case management system

- Designed a Wide-Area PC network for the operation of a distributed database at over 60 community-based sites throughout Boston.
- Developed the functional specifications for a custom database application which will:
- provide community-based case management for participants in education and training programs,
- provide Boston residents interested in employment and training programs with "one-stop shopping" for services,
- provide EDIC with comprehensive management information, and
- meet all federal data requirements.
- This system will integrate client tracking, program performance monitoring, vendor invoicing, and overall system monitoring and management tools.
- This system will replace an obsolete remote access system operated by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, will produce staffing efficiencies and will provide more effective service to clients.
- System development commenced in early 1993, and the new system will be operational by June of 1994.

Maintenance of Client Database

- Maintain data on over 2,500 clients, 200 employment and training programs, funded through 15 different grant sources per year, each with specific tracking regulations.
- Process client-level paperwork on education, training, and placement services, including data input, data validation and file maintenance.
- Troubleshoot and problem-solve tracking issues for EDIC staff and training program vendors.

Management Reporting and Funding Source Reporting

- Produce performance and monitoring reports for vendors and EDIC staff.

Determination of Program Eligibility

- Enforce funding-source restrictions on participation.

Performance-Based Invoice Processing

- Monitor participation and contractual reimbursement requirements.

III. Operation of Boston Residents Jobs Program (BRJP) Tracking System

On-going Operational Enhancements to New System modifications to the database structure and operations.

- Enhancements justified by in-depth cost/benefit analysis of each suggested enhancement.

Maintenance of Employee/Work Hours Database

- Maintain data on approximately 1,620,000 work hours, 7,950 employees, and 170 projects per year.
- Process timesheet-level paperwork on employees, work hours, construction contractors and projects, including data input, data validation and file maintenance
- Troubleshoot and problem-solve tracking issues for EDIC staff and construction contractors.

Management Reporting and BEC Reporting

- Produce performance and monitoring reports for contractors and EDIC staff.

Analysis of Project and Contractor Performance

- Interpret performance reports, and produce ad-hoc queries on issues raised.

MAJOR PROJECTS

MAJOR PROJECTS

1. FINANCING

Access to capital is perhaps the greatest impediment to growth and job creation facing Boston businesses. In 1992, a survey of Boston businesses done by EDIC found that over 60% of Boston businesses experienced great difficulty in getting credit. In 1993, an EDIC survey of minority businesses found that 65% experienced great difficulty in getting credit to operate. In response to the continuing credit crunch, EDIC, through its affiliates, the Boston Local Development Corporation and the Boston Industrial Development Financing Authority, have committed extensive resources to leveraging and making credit available for the growth of Boston businesses.

BOSTON LOCAL DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

- Between 1990 and 1993, BLDC issued 19 loans to Boston small businesses for a total of $1,446,950.
- BLDC's $1,446,950 in loans leveraged $4,959,250 in private bank and other public and quasi-public capital.
- 7 of BLDC's 19 loans, or 37% of the loans were issued to minority-owned companies.
- BLDC's loans between 1990 and 1993 retained or created 545 jobs.
- In 1992, EDIC successfully negotiated the recapitalization of BLDC through a $3 million line of credit from Fleet Bank, a key part of the negotiations for the acquisition of the Bank of New England by Fleet.
- In 1992, BLDC, working with Boston Community Development Corporations, created the Boston Small Business Fund (BSBF), a micro-lending program offering neighborhood businesses loans of between $1,000 and $15,000. The BSBF successfully raised $1 million in debt from three participating banks; Bank of Boston, Fleet Bank, and Wainwright Bank and Trust; and $142,000 in operating equity from six foundations and banks.
- In its first year of operation, the BSBF established local neighborhood micro-lending programs in six Boston neighborhoods; North Dorchester, Roxbury, Grove Hall, East Boston, South Boston, and Jamaica Plain. In its first year, the BSBF issued seventeen loans worth a total of $225,000. Of these seventeen loans, seven, or 41 percent were issued to minority-owned businesses.

- Over the past three years, BIDFA has issued bond commitments for five projects totalling $108,153,000.

- BIDFA financings from 1990 to 1993 included:

    * St. Joseph's Manor
    * Patriot Paper Corporation
    * Jet-A-Way
    * Harbor Electric Energy Company/Phase I
    * Harbor Electric Energy Company/Phase II

- BIDFA financings between 1990 and 1993 created 350 jobs.

2. SUPPORTING BUSINESS GROWTH

EDIC utilizes a wide variety of tools, including its industrial parks, marketing, advocacy, and technical assistance to support businesses in a wide variety of industries, from garment manufacturing to tourism.

- EDIC efficiently manages and maintains 3,380,172 of industrial and commercial real estate, which is home to nearly 200 companies, employing 4,000 people. Investments in the Marine Industrial Park include:

    * Construction of the $7.2 million MIP parking facility, containing 1,100 parking spaces.

    * Rehabilitated the Caisson at Drydock #3 at a total project cost of $528,150.

    * Completed construction of $150,000 in improvements to the Boston Technical Center, including elevator rehabilitation, entry way improvements and new flooring.

    * Completed sub-division construction of Building 32.

    * Designed and constructed $100,000 replacement underground fuel storage tank.

- Between 1990 and 1993, EDIC leased nearly 220,000 square feet to fifteen new tenants who expanded their businesses into the Marine Industrial Park. Many of these tenants would have left Boston if they did not move or expand into the MIP.

- EDIC reactivated Dry Dock #3 after six years of dis-use, creating 400 jobs in the shipbuilding industry with the berthing of the U.S.S. Altair and the Queen Elizabeth II.

Wear Corporation of East Boston, which is creating 200 jobs for union garment workers to stitch high-quality military uniforms.

- The Garment Industry Assistance Program has brought together the unions, workers, manufacturers and designers to help build the garment industry in Boston and increase its competitiveness. The program led to the opening of the first new union garment shop in Boston in three decades, Fashion A, which employs 30 workers.

- Extensive marketing efforts have helped support several major events for the tourism industry between 1990 and 1993.

    * By hosting the Big Apple Circus and other cultural events, EDIC brought more than 100,000 visitors to the Marine Industrial Park.

    * Sail Boston 1992, centered largely at the Marine Industrial Park, brought more than 4 million visitors to the MIP and helped bring more than $500 million into the Boston economy.

    * The Marine Industrial Park was host to more than 150,000 visitors to the Queen Elizabeth II, and more than 30,000 cruise ship passengers.

3. MARKETING AND ATTRACTING NEW BUSINESSES

In 1990, EDIC published "Growth In the Nineties: Prospects for Strategic Economic Development in Boston". This report, which proposed a targeted effort to recruit and help grow several emerging and rapidly growing industries, has formed the basis of EDIC's business marketing and recruitment efforts. Marketing efforts to date have included:

- Publication of 12 page advertising supplement in Business Week
- Publication of 10 page supplement in Barron's
- Publication of advertisement in Business Week
- Insertion of advertisement in Site Selection magazine.
- Direct mailings to more than 1,000 high growth companies in the environmental, biotechnology, and advanced materials industries
- Attendance at regional trade shows and industry meetings in the environmental, food processing, biomedical, and advanced materials industries.

Boston businesses need a place where they can turn to as a "one-stop shopping" center for their needs. Using a wide array of business services, EDIC has provided a central location for business technical assistance for Boston businesses.

- Established a Boston Works for Business 1-800 number to offer businesses outside the city direct access to information about locating in Boston.

- Published an annually updated Business Assistance Resource Guide which outlines available business assistance services and financing sources in the Metro-Boston area.

- Published an annual Site-Finder, listing all available industrial leasing and development sites in Boston.

- Published a "Central Artery/Third Harbor Tunnel Business Impact Report", analyzing the impact on the project on 66 Boston businesses.

- Sponsored "Boston Works for Business" seminar series, including one dozen seminars on topics ranging from writing business plans and financial controls to creating Employee Stock Ownership programs and export techniques.

- Hosted "Business for Boston" marketing conference at Northeastern University, designed to generate business for smaller Boston companies by matching them with major purchasing agents.

- Sponsored continuing series of neighborhood based credit seminars to help Boston businesses prepare business plans, loan applications, and identify business problems and resources.

5. ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

BOSTON STATE HOSPITAL

- In 1992, EDIC joined with the Lena Park CDC and the Boston Redevelopment Authority in a Partnership to re-develop the Boston State Hospital site. In December, 1992, the Partnership submitted an "Expression of Interest" to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Division of Capital Planning which outlined a full development program for the site. That program includes the creation of 4,000 permanent jobs, 2,800 construction jobs, nearly 2 million square feet of manufacturing, light industrial and biotechnology space, 200 units of housing, and 100,000 square feet for community mental health services and job training facilities.

In October of 1992, the Department of Housing and Urban Development awarded a $350,000 technical assistance grant to economically empower low-income residents of the neighborhoods surrounding Boston State Hospital to EDIC. Funds will support EDIC's coordination of a Boston State Hospital Enterprise Zone Strategy, including a preliminary physical and development plan. Funds will also be used to work with Lena financial services to neighborhood residents in the Boston State area.

MATERIALS RECOVERY FACILITY

- EDIC in cooperation with the Jackson Square Collaborative is planning for the construction of a Materials Recycling Facility on four acres of MBTA-owned land in Jackson Square. This site, part of EDIC's Jackson Square Economic Development Plan, will receive extensive clean-up and infrastructure improvement. The MRF, which will be managed by the City of Boston Department of Public Works, through a private operator contract, will employ 35 to 50 local residents, and will serve as a catalyst for the development of the Jackson Square industrial area.

HARBOR GATEWAY

- The Harbor Gateway Seafood Center is a proposed multi-tenanted facility located on two waterfront parcels in the Marine Industrial Park. EDIC is currently carrying out a $4.5 million construction contract to rebuild a 450 foot berth and construct new roads with new utilities on the site. The Seafood Center will accommodate a 65,000 square foot building and house up to ten users. EDIC has identified and is in active negotiation with users for approximately 150,000 square feet of space, representing approximately 500 jobs retained or added in the City of Boston.

EMERGING INDUSTRIES CENTER

- In October of 1992, EDIC, in collaboration with CDC of Boston and Massachusetts Biotechnology Research Institute, received a $1 million appropriation from the U.S. Congress for the planning and development of the Boston Emerging Industries Center. The Center will be a "superincubator" for startup companies in emerging sectors such as biotechnology, environmental industries, and advanced materials. The Center will include shared research and prototype production space, equity financing capacity, and an education and training component for neighborhood residents in the are surrounding the site. EDIC and the CDC will develop the Center in the Crosstown Industrial Park. To date, EDIC has enlisted the support and participation of the Environmental Business Council, Citizens Energy Corporation, Boston University, MIT, and a number of venture capital companies.

6. PUBLIC POLICY

A central part of EDIC's activities is to analyze Boston's economy, highlight its strengths, and develop programs to respond to the city's economic weaknesses. EDIC's public policy activities have ranged from regular tracking of economic data, to specific industry studies, to highly visible public forums.

- "An Economic Development Program for the 1990s" A comprehensive workplan and mission statement detailing EDIC's progress, goals and objectives.

- "Growth in the Nineties: Prospects for Strategic Economic Development in Boston". Study analyses Boston's competitive advantages and disadvantages and recommends strategies for business recruitment and growth in key industries.

- "Who Benefits from BioMed? Real Jobs for Boston Residents?" Analysis of 20,000 potential jobs in bio-med industry, opportunities for employment of Boston residents, and job training gaps.

- "Plant Closings and Layoffs, a Technical Guide for Unions, Workers and Community Organizations". This manual details federal and state protections for workers in plant closing situations.

- "Setting the Record Straight: Doing Business in Boston". The study was undertaken to counter the prevailing impression that Boston has been priced out of the running as a business location.

- "The Boston Residents Jobs Policy: Serving Boston's Neighborhoods". Undertaken as a review of the progress of the BRJP, the study illustrates how the BRJP is the most comprehensive and effective program of its type in the nation.

- "The Missing Rung". A study of the health care industry in Boston, its role as an employer of Boston residents, and gaps in the health care employment and training system.

- "Investing in Human Development, Promoting Economic Self-Sufficiency". A status report and funding strategy for the human services portion of Boston's Community Development Block Grant.

- "Environmental Jobs for the Future". An analysis of the job growth potential in the wide array of environmental industries in Boston.

- "SiteFinder" An annual survey and catalogue of available industrial locations and development sites in Boston.

- "Business Assistance Resource Guide" A regularly updated catalogue of business financing and technical assistance programs in the greater Boston area.

- "Boston Industrial Survey" An annual survey and data base of Boston's industries.

- "Competitive Cities Legislation", 1991, 1992. A package of eight economic development legislative initiatives submitted by Mayor Flynn to the Legislature covering job training, emerging industries, financing, and vocational education.

England economy and its major cities, prepared for the New England Competitive Cities Conference.

CONFERENCES

- The New England Competitive Cities Conference, held in February 1993, attracted 150 Mayors, city officials, and business leaders from throughout New England to develop joint strategies for encouraging economic growth in New England and its central cities.

- The Roxbury Economic Town Meeting, held in March, 1993, attracted 250 community and business leaders, elected officials, and business people from Roxbury to begin planning an economic growth strategy for Roxbury.

- Organized a conference entitled, "Rebuilding Community-Based Employment and Training" in collaboration with the New England Training and Employment Council and a regional network of community-based organizations.

7.ONGOING PRIORITY PROJECTS FOR 1993/1994

The following are key projects which are at critical stages of development and will be top priorities for EDIC in 1993/1994.

BOSTON STATE HOSPITAL

With the submission of an Expression of Interest, and the receipt of a $350,000 federal grant, EDIC is poised to begin moving a serious development agenda for Boston State Hospital. Key tasks will include receiving site designation, undertaking site inventory and analysis, completing a comprehensive development program, and securing infrastructure and other development funds.

BOSTON EMERGING INDUSTRIES CENTER

The immediate tasks for the Boston Emerging Industries Center are to finalize the Board structure, formalize the initial federal funding, contract with an architectural and design team, and secure a second round of federal funds.

GENERAL SHIP ACQUISITION CORPORATION

To adapt to changes in the naval market, seize on new commercial repair opportunities and increase ship repair employment by 1,000 new jobs, EDIC is finalizing a plan by which the General Ship Acquisition Corporation (GSAC) will purchase and expand the General Ship operation through a $10 million financing package. GSAC's strategy -- supplementing the existing facility with Dry Dock #3 -- will enable General Ship to undertake work on larger and more complex naval ships as well as on commercial ships and industrial projects.

In May, EDIC, the Mass. Association of Community Development Corporations, the Boston Foundation, and the Local Initiatives Support Corporation will begin the development of the first phase of the Partnership which will enable CDCs to gain economic development skills and plan a major economic development project. Additional tasks involve formalizing the Partnership Executive Committee and raising debt and equity commitments.

MATERIALS RECYCLING FACILITY

In April, the Boston Department of Public Works will designate Jackson Square as their priority site for the location of the MRF. The immediate tasks are site assembly, securing of the state capital grant, and development of a build/operation Request for Proposals.

HARBOR GATEWAY

In addition to managing the current construction of the pier and roadways, the most pressing task is the final negotiations with potential tenants for the fish center and possible additional buildings.

PIER 7/WHARF 8

EDIC is moving to immediately stabilize this property and provide services to the seafood tenants located there. EDIC has also prepared a request for proposals for possible use as a marine transportation terminal to house harbor cruises, water shuttle and possibly ferry services to and from Boston.

BUILDING 32

EDIC is working to complete a major upgrade of existing multi-story industrial building, including sub-divisions to service the needs of smaller manufacturing firms.

DIGITAL

Digital Equipment Corporation is moving close to a negotiated deal with the current management team at the plant. EDIC's immediate tasks will be to work with this team to help assemble a workable financing and building ownership structure.

PARCEL 2B

Parcel 2B in the Crosstown Industrial Park is the last vacant,unplanned parcel in the industrial park. Currently EDIC is marketing the site and has issued a Request for Proposals.

MAJOR PROJECTS: JCS DIVISION

1. EDIC through its Jobs and Community Services Department is the administrative entity of the employment and training grants and the management entity for the public service portion of the Community Development Block grant for the City of Boston. As such EDIC must manage a procurement process for the allocation of dollars and the provision of services for the next two fiscal years.

   For the employment and training grants, the Board of the Boston Private Industry Council is by statute required to provide oversight and approve the expenditure of all funds. For the Community Development Block Grant, the acceptance and expenditure of the funds is subject to the approval of the Boston City Council. In each case final approval must be in place by the middle of May in order to have services operating by the beginning of the next fiscal year, July 1, 1994.

   In each case, the procurement process is guided by a planning process required by statute and regulation by the federal agencies which administer the broad grants. The planning processes for both sets of grants (employment and training and CDBG) are well underway in order to have Requests for Proposal out by late January and early February. Again, there is virtually no flexibility in the timeframe of the procurement in order to have contracted services available by July 1, 1994.

   The Mayor's policy office has been kept informed of the planning process and given all planning documents for the Community Development Block Grant. As the planning process with the Private Industry Council moves into a product stage all information and documents will be shared with Mayoral staff for employment and training grants as well.

2. There are two major system redesign projects for the employment and training system which are moving into an implementation phase and must be in place by July 1, 1994 in order to be in compliance with new amendments and regulations for the Job Training Partnership Act.

   The first system redesign project is the development of a local area network among the sixty or so providers of employment and training services throughout the city which links the providers, EDIC and the state employment service through an automated case management system. The system has been designed by a workgroup which includes EDIC staff, PIC staff, representatives from community-based service providers and funding sources.

   The system will put information regarding the comprehensive services needed by system customers to become economically self-sufficient at the fingertips of the case managers who work directly with the customer. The system will be customer-centered and allow for the movement of all intake, assessment and mastery information provided by the customer or an agency to move with them throughout the continuum of agencies from which they access services. The system will also provide ontime data to EDIC managers of the system in order to track the progress of individual clients, the performance of each agency, and the results of the entire system more effectively. In addition it will facilitate communication throughout the system through electronic mail, and bulletin boards.

The second major redesign project, also developed through a workgroup consisting of the same constituencies as above, focuses on the development of common intake and assessment standards and measurements which will be used across the decentralized system of providers and by EDIC. This common process will allow for a customer-centered approach which ensures that any customer of the system is aware of the full range of services offered and does not have to repeat intake and assessment steps as the customer moves across the system.

3. EDIC is also applying technological enhancements to the process of monitoring and enforcing the Boston Resident Jobs Program. The enhancements will streamline the reporting and data collection process for workforce and Minority and Women Business Enterprise information in order to improve the efficiency of very limited staff who are responsible for monitoring hundreds of public and private projects.

4. EDIC acts as the program administrator for the Neighborhood Jobs Trust, the city's jobs linkage entity. The Trust has two job creation proposals pending which need the approval of the Trustees. The focus of the Trust's job creation efforts have been on the development of upgrade programs and entry level training and education programs for Boston residents in unskilled and low skilled jobs in the health care sector who are at risk of either losing their jobs or not moving into positions which allow for financial and career growth. The proposals pending are from Brigham and Women's Hospital and New England Medical Center. Programs are currently operating at New England Deaconess and Beth Israel Hospitals.

5. EDIC has a number of ongoing projects in partnership with local employers. Most recently, EDIC worked with the developer and employers at the South Bay Retail Mall to recruit, screen and refer Boston residents from adjacent neighborhoods for positions. Over ninety percent of the applications came from residents from Roxbury, Dorchester, and South Boston and over ninety-five percent of the people hired live in those neighborhoods.

   EDIC has created training partnerships between employers and training organizations in the areas of biomedical research and manufacturing, energy conservation, telecommunications and health care. The partnerships ensure that residents are being prepared for jobs for which there is demand and that the curriculum reflects the actual competencies needed to enter the industry and to adapt within the industry to environmental and technological change.

6. EDIC was awarded a Youth Fair Chance grant from the United States Department of Labor in 1992. This is a three year grant to serve high risk youth and their families in a high poverty area of no more than 30,000 people. The grant launched the opening of the Egleston Community High School, which is also operated by the Ecumenical Social Action Council in partnership with a coalition of neighborhood organizations and social service agencies.

The Youth Fair Chance program is one of the few programs geared toward cities and at-risk youth who live in high poverty areas in the federal budget. Two additional competitive Requests for Proposal are anticipated in the next few months. One will be a closed competition for existing sites to expand and the other will be an open competition for new sites. Boston should compete in for funding in both rounds. EDIC has been working with the Egleston coalition and ESAC to discuss expansion programs. Staff have also had some preliminary discussions with the Boston Public School Department and the Private Industry Council regarding other potential sites to compete in the open round.

7. EDIC through its Worker Assistance Center is serving dislocated workers who have lost their jobs as a result of a plant closing or large lay-off. In addition to formula dollars received by EDIC to serve the general population of dislocated workers, a discretionary grant was also awarded to EDIC to serve workers laid off as a result of the Digital Equipment Company and Stride Rite plant closings. EDIC is also launching pilot programs to serve targeted populations such as the Latino population through an experimental design of creating a structure and culture of group services and accountability.

   While the health care lay-offs to date have not resulted in major dislocations and the hospitals have not wanted the services of the Worker Assistance Centers, the City needs to anticipate further dislocation and design a retraining and job creation strategy which takes advantage of new opportunities in universal access and less technical medical intervention through community and preventive approaches. Boston should position itself as a city that has the "natural resources" and infrastructure to pilot such approaches and re-deploy its health care workforce from institutions to the community and home.

8. The major projects for the Boston Residents Jobs Policy staff include: Parcel 18/Ruggles Center, Beth Israel Research North, Shriner's Burns Institute, New Boston Garden/Shawmut Center, Winthrop's Estates, Cortes Lodging House and Lucerne Gardens.

   The projects nearing completion include: Boston City Hospital, Genzyme, Boston Public Library McKim Building and Prudential Center Phase I - Retail.

   Goals for 1994 are to computerize public projects for close out and to continue to work with EDIC's MIS staff on changes/additions to database and modifications to statistical reports which will allow monitors to more effectively track and access vital contractor/project data.

MAJOR BARRIERS

MAJOR BARRIERS TO ACHIEVING AGENCY MISSION

1. EDIC's major barrier to carrying out its economic development mission is the lack of clarity around the corporation's ultimate organization and place in the City of Boston. Without the completion of a formal merger, reorganization, or appointment of a permanent Executive Director of the corporation, EDIC cannot be a completely effective delivery vehicle for economic development, financing, or job training services.

2. For the past three years, EDIC has made a major priority of helping to fill the credit needs of small businesses which cannot access credit privately. However, the original capitalization of EDIC's lending affiliate, the Boston Local Development Corporation, came from Community Development Block Grant and Economic Development Administration funds. Though BLDC operates a revolving loan fund, these loan sources have been nearly exhausted. In order for EDIC to continue to provide capital to Boston small businesses, which have severe credit needs, BLDC will need to be re-capitalized by either private or public sources, or a combination of the two. Currently, a line of credit negotiated with Fleet is on hold, pending the resolution of EDIC's re-organization issues. This line of credit should be activated, and other public sources of capital such as CDBG and the Neighborhood Development Fund should be considered.

3. EDIC, and the City of Boston faces a major barrier in retaining and expanding existing industrial businesses and attracting new companies. At present, Boston continues to lose industrial firms due to bargain bank-sale properties in the surrounding suburbs, as well as a shortage of high-quality, single story, affordable industrial space within the city boundaries. Unlike the suburbs, Boston's industrial space tends to reflect the more vertical needs of manufacturers from another era. If Boston is to compete for existing and new firms, a concerted effort will be needed to assemble and develop new, state-of-the-art industrial facilities, beyond those existing in EDIC's three industrial parks and the BRA's Charlestown Navy Yard.

4. Development of new industrial parcels either in existing or new industrial parks is severely limited by the lack of public development subsidies. The Marine Industrial Park has seen the investment of over $30 million in infrastructure, building improvements, and basic systems from the Economic Development Administration, the UDAG program, Land Bank loans, and City of Boston Capital funds. Because of the high level of hazardous wastes at most potential Boston industrial locations, and the age of existing structures and infrastructure, substantial public investment is needed for new facilities to compete with low-priced real estate outside of Boston or Massachusetts. However, most federal industrial development programs no longer exist. The City of Boston will need to take a serious look at the use of limited federal, state, and city resources for focused industrial development.

5. EDIC seeks to help Boston residents get the necessary education and training to secure jobs. Federal and state policies often are overly prescriptive as to how systems are to be organized and focus on process rather than product. For example, the state policy directive on procurement of employment and training services runs more than twenty pages. JCS staff have worked to master the details on the bureaucratic regulations so that some creative work can be done around this obstacle.

6. The best training and placement policy is a full employment economy. During the labor shortage of the late 1980s, employers competed for available bodies and were willing to accommodate disadvantaged job seekers. The recessionary labor market that has prevailed for the last three years has put Boston's economically disadvantaged job seekers in direct competition with highly credentialed applicants. For medical secretary positions, college graduates are taking positions that went exclusively to the disadvantaged population a few years ago. By working in close partnership with employers, EDIC and the training providers work around this obstacle.

7. The federally funded job training system which JCS oversees is small (see services section). Paul Osterman in The Midst of Plenty, a study on poverty done for the Boston Foundation in 1989-90, estimated that the job training system served no more than one in twenty eligible individuals. With increasing poverty and stagnant resources, an even smaller proportion is served in 1993. EDIC, working with the Mayor's office, hopes to counter this obstacle by effective education and advocacy with state and federal officials.

8. Census data indicate clearly that Boston changed dramatically in the 1980s. The immigrant and linguistic minority populations increased substantially as a percentage of the over-all population. Those seeking training and employment require more basic education, more English as a Second Language and more intensive services. Again, this comes while resources, at best, remain level. At the same time, the entry-level requirements for jobs in Boston are going up. By structuring in longer-term training and pre-vocational training services, EDIC is seeking to work around this obstacle.

9. Coordination and communication among city agencies in the economic development and the human development areas must be enhanced to provide more proactive and creative strategies for job creation and customer-centered service delivery. The advances of information technology could transform a fragmented and decentralized system into a more coherent and customer-centered system. In addition, there must be regular forums for communication among agency heads and operational people either through more cabinet structures, project-based cross-functional workgroups and/or through a citywide electronic mail system.

10. There are four monitoring staff for the Boston Residents Jobs Policy who are responsible for monitoring 208 projects. EDIC has used information systems to streamline the data collection, interpretation and reporting procedures. However, meetings and enforcement actions are labor intensive. As a result of resource and staffing constraints efforts have been concentrated on the largest projects. Enforcement actions have been aggressive and visible on those projects to send a clear message to the contractor community and building trade community that the enforcement role is taken seriously.

The over-all compliance results have been continually improving and nearly meets or exceeds the goals in some areas, despite staffing constraints. The major weakness has been that on smaller projects, monitoring and enforcement has been less visible and many of those projects are visible to the community and important to the community in terms of employment and symbolic inclusion. Ideally, staffing resources would be increased. There is currently no explicitly funding stream for the Boston Residents Jobs Policy. It has been subsidized by the larger EDIC budget.

7. In 1990 the authority to certify MWBE firms in the construction field moved the the MWBE office of the Administrative Services Department. At best, one full-time equivalent staff person is assigned to working on certification and de-certification issues which are critical to enforcing compliance with the city MWBE ordinance in the construction field. EDIC is enhancing its information system to collect data and file reports on MWBE compliance on construction projects. The city should review its policy regarding the acceptance of state SOMBWA certification, policies and procedures for city certification and its internal capacity to certify in order to strengthen compliance and MWBE capacity. A deliberate plan should also be put into place to expand the capacity of MWBE firms through business training and solutions to bonding issues.

MAJOR COLLABORATORS

MAJOR COLLABORATORS

EDIC has a strong commitment to close collaboration with neighborhood residents, business organizations, minority businesses, community development corporations, and job training and human service providers. In 1990, when EDIC merged with the Mayor's Office of Jobs and Community Services, and revamped its agency mission, the agency met and consulted with over 1,200 representatives of the above noted groups.

EDIC works closely with Boston's private bankers, quasi-public lenders, and other financial institutions through the lending activities of the Boston Local Development Corporation. Additionally, the Boston Small Business Fund program of BLDC, as well as several development projects have led to close collaborations with Boston's Community Development Corporations.

EDIC's businesses services, leasing, and development activities have created close collaborations with neighborhood Boards of Trade, industry trade associations, minority business leaders, and hundreds of small business owners. Attached are example mailing lists of EDIC's collaborators in lending, business and economic development.

The strategies for service design, capacity and operations are designed by EDIC staff in close collaboration with community-based organizations, neighborhood and civic organizations, other city agencies, state funding sources, employers, the Boston Private Industry Council and academic and research centers such as the Brandeis Center for Human Resources, the Trotter Institute the Gaston Institute and the Northeastern University Center for Labor Market Studies.

Explicit planning processes are conducted in the fall of each year to gather analytical research, neighborhood feedback and observations and practitioner and academic expertise in shaping service plans and strategies.

For the employment and training system, there are two committees of the Boston Private Industry Council that involve practitioners, city agencies, funding sources, academics and employers which design the parameters of a two year employment and training plan and Requests for Proposals for service providers. In addition, EDIC has convened workgroups which include practitioners, the PIC, city agencies and funding sources to design a common assessment system and a local area network.

For the human service grants, EDIC conducts a community hearing process which includes four neighborhood meetings and a citywide hearing to develop the priorities for the use of the public service portion of the Community Development Block Grant. Prior to the hearing process, EDIC interviews other city agencies, and academic organizations to shape a priority statement which is distributed at the community hearings in multiple languages and in Braille. The priority statement is also framed by analysis of demographic, poverty and service trends from sources such as the United States Census from 1990.

Boston Housing Authority, the Boston Summer Jobs agencies, the Department of Public Welfare, Department of Employment and Training, Industrial Services Program, Massachusetts Office of Refugees and Immigration, Department of Education, Massachusetts Highway Department, MWRA, Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission and the United States Department of Labor is developing streamlined delivery strategies and in leveraging dollars.

EDIC has developed specific training partnerships with employers and training organizations including New England Medical Center, Genetics Institute, Genzyme, the Howard Hughes Research Center, Boston Edison, Conservation Services Group, Cablevision, Warner Cable, Continental Cable, New England Deaconess, Brigham and Women's Hospital, Beth Israel Hospital, Children's Hospital, retailers in the South Bay Retail Mall, employers at the Marine Industrial Park, Joseph Pollack Corporation, Atlas Engineering, the former Patriot Paper, the Central Artery/Tunnel Project, the MWRA project and a number of private construction contractors.

EDIC works very closely with the Private Industry Council is developing occupational priorities for the employment and training system and in understanding the competencies necessary for a resident to succeed in the current job market.

For the Boston Residents Jobs Policy, EDIC works closely with the Greater Boston Building Trades Council and individual unions, the Boston Employment Commission, the BRA, Public Facilities Department and other city agencies involved in construction, the MWBE office and general and sub-contractors of city and private development projects.

UTILIZATION

M/WBE UTILIZATION

Pursuant to the City of Boston's Ordinance promoting the utilization of minority and women owned businesses enterprises (M/WBEs) in the City of Boston, EDIC's goal is that a minimum of 15% of the "eligible" dollars expended as a result of the procurement of goods and services be expended on certified MBEs and 5% on certified WBEs. As part of EDIC's ongoing efforts to actively seek out M/WBEs, the Purchasing Coordinator and Administrative Services Manager utilize the M/WBE directories published by the City of Boston, Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA), and the State Office of Minority & Women Business Assistance (SOMWBA), as well as information available from the New England Minority Purchasing Council, when procuring goods and services. EDIC also participates in regularly scheduled Trade Fairs held by the City's Minority and Women Business Enterprise Office.

The attached reports outline EDIC's current performance through the first quarter of Fiscal Year 1994, and year end totals for Fiscal Years 1991-1993. This data has been compiled by EDIC staff. The City's M/WBE Office generates its own reports based on transactions processed through the City's Auditing Department, but EDIC does not process any of its transactions through the Auditing Department.

At a minimum the EDIC Assistant Director/Treasurer reviews the utilization of M/WBEs on a quarterly basis. This information is compiled by the EDIC Purchasing Coordinator and is reviewed by the Purchasing Manager on a monthly basis.
